Radiant Packaging has always believed in sustainable business practices. And as much as we believe that the needs of the present generation should be met, we discourage jeopardising the future of upcoming generations. In furtherance of our belief, we are committed towards creating awareness by promoting eco-friendly packaging solutions and implementing techniques for our packaging to be recyclable, reusable or biodegradable.

We have an in-house sustainability team headed by key personnel from our top management, which is focussed on curating strategies that complement the environment. We consider the impact of our packaging solutions upon suppliers, customers, staff, the outside community and the world as a whole and align our strategies to their best interest.

To create awareness for available options in line of sustainability, we host informative seminars for our clients where we present the benefits of transitioning from conventional systems to sustainable systems and the best way to do so. This allows us to keep them well informed about the journey they could embark on with us in helping mother nature.
